Shallouf, chief executive officer of Mesa-based NextCare Urgent Care. "We need some money for the scholarship fund will be held from 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 20, at the Rhythm Room, 1019 E. Indian School Road in Phoenix. The Repeat Offenders, a 12-piece Rhythm and Blues band that Strouse helped lead, will perform at the clubs blues bar as a "Farewell to Dan". Doors open at 5 p.m., and cover is $10 for students with ID, and $5 for kids ages 12 and younger (minors must be accompanied by a parent). All proceeds from ticket sales will go to the scholarship fund established in his honor. Strouse was exemplary in his dedication to his students, going above and beyond to prepare for their classes and poring over their papers in order to achieve balance in his private life with his wife, Nancy Gonzales, and his two sons. "That's because the public doesn't have an understanding of the whole process. The way our agent represents us has a big affect on our peers. If you're the top athlete and playing winning, people will want to be like you," said a keynote to Mike Kennedy, co-founding partner of Gallagher and Kennedy and chairman of the Arizona Super Bowl Host Committee. Kennedy will give a behind-the-scenes view of preparing for the Super Bowl. An entertainment panel is scheduled for 12:30 p.m.

"I'll be giving the perspective from an athlete's point of view," Salmon said. "Sometimes what you read in the papers, the amount of money we make, the pressures can be overwhelming." "I'm a very passionate and dedicated person. That's how you prepare yourself to learn about the realities of sports and entertainment law careers first hand, from real-world professionals," Seymann said. "This field is fascinating to many, but often seems mysterious and elusive. We hope to lift the veil a bit and debunk some of the myths.

"Early on, there's no doubt that having an agent brings you better value in the marketplace," Salmon said. "But as a player becomes more veteran, he's established, his market value will moderate the sports panel, which in addition to Salmon and Kennedy, will include Jim Kuzmicz, vice president and general counsel for Gamers, a Scottsdale company that represents professional baseball players; Pat Murphy, ASU's legal counsel and baseball coach; and Nena Lee, vice president and general counsel for the Arizona Diamondbacks.

The entertainment panel will be moderated by Brent Roam, a third-year law student, actor and musician, and will include Richard Schulenburg, an independent entertainment attorney from Beverly Hills, Calif., Booker T. Evans, an entertainment attorney at Greenspan, Traub in Phoenix, Gary Goldman, former head of Fox Animation, animator and animated film director and producer with the Bluth Group in Phoenix, Matt Connolly, a licensing executive director for McFarlane Toys in Tempe; and Connie J. Mahleos, an entertainment attorney with Dodge, Anderson, Mableson, Steiner, Jones & Horowitz in Phoenix. The symposium is free, but attorneys may register for up to four hours ofCLE credit for $150. Breakfast and lunch will be served.

For more information, contact Scott Seymann, president of SELSA, at (480) 365-8000, or scott.seymann@asu.edu.

The symposium will be held in the Kinsey Room in the Great Hall of Armstrong Hall at the College of Law. The symposium kicks off at 9:30 a.m. with presentations on representing talent and agency. The panel "The Art of Representation," which will explore the relationship between talent and agency. The panel "The Principles of the arts and entertainment law symposium, will be held at 10 a.m. on Oct. 18 in the Great Hall in Armstrong Hall at the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University. The symposium kicks off at 9:30 a.m. with a keynote by Mike Kennedy, co-founding partner of Gallagher and Kennedy and chairman of the Arizona Super Bowl Host Committee. Kennedy will give a behind-the-scenes view of preparing for the Super Bowl. An entertainment panel is scheduled for 12:30 p.m.

"I'll be giving the perspective from an athlete's point of view," Salmon said. "Sometimes what you read in the papers, the amount of money we make, the pressures can be overwhelming."

"I'm a very passionate and dedicated person. That's how you prepare yourself to learn about the realities of sports and entertainment law careers first hand, from real-world professionals," Seymann said. "This field is fascinating to many, but often seems mysterious and elusive. We hope to lift the veil a bit and debunk some of the myths."
Salmon retired in 2006 as the Angel’s all-time leader in home runs (299), runs scored (938), walks (965), and hitting percentage (.499). He is second in franchise history with 1,012 RBIs, behind Garret Anderson. Salmon said he now has time to coach Pop Warner Football and Little League for his kids, a 14-year-old daughter, 11-year-old son, and 7-year-old twins, one boy and one girl. He’s also planning to go fishing more often, and going back to school to finish a bachelor’s degree in management.

“I have a ton of interests,” he said. “If I were younger, I could see myself going to law school, med school, getting a pilot’s license. I’m excited by any kind of experience that will broaden my horizons.”

SCIENCE MEETS ART

Genetic research and ethical and social issues in genomics and the field of law will take center stage next week during a three-day event involving scholars at the College of Law and interpretative dancers from the Eastern Seaboard.

“The political role of the religious right, American poli- cymakers have increasingly looked to religion for guidance on important policy issues, including questions of distributive justice and how best to allocate tax burdens,” Chodorow’s abstract states. “While many claim that Judeo-Christian values require progressivity, the examples of taxation found in the sacred texts apparently refute this claim. This article examines four examples of taxation found in the Bible and Talmud to determine whether it is appropriate to infer from them a Judeo-Christian principle of tax fairness that should apply in a modern, secular tax system.”

President professor Linda Demain was invited to speak recently at an American Psychological Association conference entitled, “Psychology’s Role in Educating Other Professions.”

FACULTY NEWS

Professor Adam Chodorow presented an article, “Biblical Tax Systems and the Case for Progressive Taxation,” at the University of Pittsburgh on Sept. 18.

“With the political role of the religious right, American policymakers have increasingly looked to religion for guidance on important policy issues, including questions of distributive justice and how best to allocate tax burdens,” Chodorow’s abstract states. “While many claim that Judeo-Ch

In the News

Professor Gary Birnbbaum is quoted in a story, “Ties That Bind: The Connection between Fraud and Foreclosures in the Mortgage Market,” on the knowledge.wesc.arizona.edu Web site. The article states that, although the public perception is that fraudually affects borrowers, evidence shows that homeowners are being taken advantage of on their loan, experts see a connection between foreclosures and mortgage fraud.

“There’s no single model for mortgage fraud,” Birnbbaum said. “Mortgage frauds can take a variety of forms.”

HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH

The Chicano/Latino Law Student Association has organized a series of speakers in honor of Hispanic Heritage Month, which begins Sept. 15, the anniversary of the land expedition of the Spanish conquistador Hernando Cortes to Mexico in 1519. The series continues through Oct. 15 and features speakers representing a variety of Latino countries—Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

MARIETTA’s comments also were picked up by The Associated Press and printed in an Indian Country Today article headlined, “Tribal farms are a growing part of Arizona’s economy.”

CAREER SERVICES: SMALL FIRM WEEK

Statistics show that most private practitioners work in small- to mid-sized firms. According to Career Services, 50 percent of the Class of 2006 went into private practice and 58 percent of those went to work in small-to mid-sized firms. This mirrors national statistics, which show 16 percent going into private practice, 48 percent of those in small-to mid-sized firms.

Because so many students will go to work in small firms, the Career Services Office has organized a week-long series of events to help students understand hiring, networking and how to succeed in small firms. The events will focus on relationship building, job-search strategies, hiring tips and specific practice area information.

Monday, Oct. 22 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

Relationship Building with Small Firms

John McCrudden, associate director of the Working Professionals Programs, will discuss the importance of relationship building and how it applies to securing a job with small- to mid-sized firms.

Tuesday, Oct. 23 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Speed Networking

Law students will meet one-on-one with attorneys from across the Valley.

Wednesday, Oct. 24 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

How to Get a Job with a Small Firm

Panelists (to include David Ortega, of Rosen, McCracken, Guerrero, Miller, & Ortega) will speak about hiring entry-level attorneys and application pitfalls, Helen Perry Grimson, past-president of the State Bar and member of The Best Lawyers in America 2008. Tsosie’s article is titled, “Cultural Challenges to Biotechnology: Native American Genetic Resources and the Concept of Cultural Harm.”

Friday, Oct. 26 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Small Firm Practitioner Program

Attorneys from 25 to 100 practice areas will provide information.

- Monday, Oct. 22 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

Relationship Building with Small Firms

John McCrudden, associate director of the Working Professionals Programs, will discuss the importance of relationship building and how it applies to securing a job with small- to mid-sized firms.

Tuesday, Oct. 23 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Speed Networking

Law students will meet one-on-one with attorneys from across the Valley.

Wednesday, Oct. 24 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

How to Get a Job with a Small Firm

Panelists (to include David Ortega, of Rosen, McCracken, Guerrero, Miller, & Ortega) will speak about hiring entry-level attorneys and application pitfalls, Helen Perry Grimson, past-president of the State Bar and member of The Best Lawyers in America 2008. Tsosie’s article is titled, “Cultural Challenges to Biotechnology: Native American Genetic Resources and the Concept of Cultural Harm.”

Friday, Oct. 26 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Small Firm Practitioner Program

Attorneys from 25 to 100 practice areas will provide information.

- Monday, Oct. 22 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

Relationship Building with Small Firms

John McCrudden, associate director of the Working Professionals Programs, will discuss the importance of relationship building and how it applies to securing a job with small- to mid-sized firms.

Tuesday, Oct. 23 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Speed Networking

Law students will meet one-on-one with attorneys from across the Valley.

Wednesday, Oct. 24 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

How to Get a Job with a Small Firm

Panelists (to include David Ortega, of Rosen, McCracken, Guerrero, Miller, & Ortega) will speak about hiring entry-level attorneys and application pitfalls, Helen Perry Grimson, past-president of the State Bar and member of The Best Lawyers in America 2008. Tsosie’s article is titled, “Cultural Challenges to Biotechnology: Native American Genetic Resources and the Concept of Cultural Harm.”

Friday, Oct. 26 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Small Firm Practitioner Program

Attorneys from 25 to 100 practice areas will provide information.

- Monday, Oct. 22 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

Relationship Building with Small Firms

John McCrudden, associate director of the Working Professionals Programs, will discuss the importance of relationship building and how it applies to securing a job with small- to mid-sized firms.

Tuesday, Oct. 23 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Speed Networking

Law students will meet one-on-one with attorneys from across the Valley.

Wednesday, Oct. 24 – 12:15-1:15 p.m. – Room 105

How to Get a Job with a Small Firm

Panelists (to include David Ortega, of Rosen, McCracken, Guerrero, Miller, & Ortega) will speak about hiring entry-level attorneys and application pitfalls, Helen Perry Grimson, past-president of the State Bar and member of The Best Lawyers in America 2008. Tsosie’s article is titled, “Cultural Challenges to Biotechnology: Native American Genetic Resources and the Concept of Cultural Harm.”

Friday, Oct. 26 – 4-6 p.m. – Steptoe & Johnson Rotunda

Small Firm Practitioner Program

Attorneys from 25 to 100 practice areas will provide information.